Gameplay: The BMP-T Mod. 2000 is a close support vehicle designed to accompany tank units and protect them against infantry. The vehicle is armed with one 30mm cannon, capable of laying down a rapid fire on enemy vehicles and infantry. Use this armored vehicle to destroy heavy and light vehicles, medium infantry tanks and to slow down the progress of tanks before you decide to retreat or engage a new battle. Use this vehicle to counter light and heavy tanks, armored vehicles and battleships. Use the vehicle's cannon to engage battle from a distance, destroy armor, and even neutralize enemy anti-tank firepower. Use the GMLR as its main armament. Use the vehicle's cannon to engage battles from long distances. Use the vehicle's gun at close range to engage enemy battleships and destroy their armor. Use the vehicle's cannon to engage enemy infantry and destroy their armors. Use the vehicle's gun to engage from long distances. We have to admit that this vehicle is incredibly powerful. It does not need to fire a single shot. The cannon is so effective that it will slowly reduce the armor of enemy tanks even if they are not hit by the cannon shots. The armor will reduce in a few frames and then it will break. We would like to thank our community for feedback and suggestions. We apologize for any bugs that exist in the game. We will try to fix them as soon as possible. This bundle has ended.

This mid-sized bundle offers the BMPT Mod.2000 Tier 8 Premium Tank Destroyer along with Loot Crates, Premium Time, Boosts and Gold. The BMPT Mod.2000 is a Russian fire support vehicle, built on the hull of a T-90 tank. Its main purpose is to accompany tank units in urban areas and protect them against enemy infantry. To do that, the vehicle is armed with one 30mm cannon, capable of laying down suppressive fire in a split second. Additionally, the vehicle is equipped with four guided missile launchers, making it a deadly opponent. The BMPT weapon system is effective against infantry due to the vehicle's low profile and armor protection. ### What's new in Armored Warfare - BMPT Officer's Pack:

Trial Review Introduction The Armored Warfare BMPT Officer's Pack comes with 3 unique items: Shatokhin BML Tzel BML AK-530 BML The Shatokhin BML is a premium performance variant of the already existing Shatokhin BMPT with significant minor changes like an AP reload from a 6-10 degrees (higher in medium calibres) to 7-10 degrees (180° per second reload), but also with the added attachments like the Kontur and 300VM2 sights. The Tzel BML represents the armour's step to the dual-feed BMPT (as of today it is experimental), one variant of the two (the Tzel BML and Fractional BML) is the BMPT variant carrying a dual-feed weapon system. The AK-530 BML represents the first step towards the unique and customisable BMPT. It does not represent the step into the BMPT variant (as such it is built from the BMPT Kit), however, the modelled weapon and its attachments can be equipped on the Pak. All three vehicles can be compared on three different metrics, while the M2 variant of the BMPT is the mainstay of the Soviet Armour, the BMPT weapons received upgrades throughout the war. The BMPT is also used extensively for amphibious operation and can get even more powerful in a special variant. The BMPT we are going to compare is the one from the Soviet side, but mainly the BMPT(K). There is a catch, the BMPT(K) being a variant of the M2 HET, the BMPT(K) can be equivalent by the metrics of both the M2 HET and the BMPT if they receive the same kit, which is one of the reasons why the BMPT variant (like the BMPT(K)) is in two variants, one equipped with the original BMPT set and the other the Tzel or Fractional BMPT set (as of today). In this review we will test each vehicle in three different game modes, two Combat and one Reactive. Campaign (1st November 2016) there was a limited test with a four player co-op: For the purpose of this review we should be referring to a Moscow campaign, as
