Photoshop Tips Photoshop and Adobe Photoshop Elements are similar in many ways, but there are some notable differences. Photoshop is a more powerful editing package, and Elements is designed to be beginner-friendly. Both apps are available for free from Adobe. The idea here is that you may have Elements on your computer, but it's not necessarily the right app for you. Photoshop is designed specifically for creating and editing images, and Elements is designed to be beginner-friendly. Photoshop is more robust for designing, editing, and creating objects, files, effects, and so on, whereas Elements is a bit lighter in those areas. Photoshop has more features, but Elements is a bit easier to learn and use. Elements makes it easier to create, edit, and organize information in a way that's similar to other Microsoft Office apps. Photoshop Elements offers a much more beginner-friendly editing experience for those who aren't necessarily a Photoshop genius. Create and edit with the simplicity of PowerPoint. Tips for T-Shirt Design The first thing you need to do when starting a new image is to choose a canvas size. Canvas size refers to the size of your design within the program. A canvas size is generally the dimensions of the paper that the final image will be printed on. For example, if you use a 300-by-200-pixel canvas, the image should be 300 pixels high and

All you have to do is open it up (tap inside the plastic) and wait for the pages to curl up. I used it with two different non-woven brush pad options, the sticky side of two beautiful brush pads, and a dry paper towel. Just be sure to always have something in there to soak up the resin, otherwise the pages may dry out and crack. Step 3 – Relight the Page! Use a flashlight to find the page you just resin treated. Open the cellophane roll as far as you can. You don't want to accidentally light up the page for the rest of your life. You want to see the acrylic fully cured but you can't see the page. So, turn down the lamp, or turn the cellophane roll back toward you, slowly, until you see the page! Just make sure that the lamp is pointed at the page and not directly toward the roll! Otherwise, you may inadvertently light up the roll and ruin it. Now that you've lit the page, all you need to do is relight it with the spotlight! Now you have more resin time! (Unfortunately, if you're working on a large project, you might only have a couple of hours in the day left.) Step 4 – Rinse and Repeat for All of the Pages! Rinse the book. Make sure that you've lit the page that you want to resin treat. Then rinse the book. Make sure that you don't use light from the lamp when rinsing. If you do, you'll have an uneven resin-coated page. Basically, as you rinse the book, you should be working with ambient light that comes from the outside. If you use the lamp, you'll have no ambient light. You don't want to rinse your book a whole lot – you'll run out of resin! Step 5 – Dry the Book Finally, dry the book. You need to use a heat gun or an IR heater. Don't use a hair dryer! You'll warp the pages. You can also use a fan. Just be careful to not blow the resin into the book. It's sticky. Just let it dry for a few hours. The pages should be completely dry before you open the book! Step 6 – Enjoy Your Finished Book So,
