The investigation, first uncovered by the Washington Free Beacon, is part of FBI's broader probe into 2016 Democratic presidential nominee Hillary Clinton's private email server. The investigation also includes an inquiry into the State Department under Secretary of State Hillary Clinton. Breitbart News reported Monday that for the last 18 months, FBI informants were embedded in the Center for Systemic Justice (CSJ). The FBI used at least two informants to investigate CSJ, which the Washington Post described as a "radical anti-racist group with chapters across the country." According to documents obtained by the Beacon, in March 2014, the FBI sent an informant to the CSJ's St. Paul, Minnesota branch to identify individuals who might be interested in collecting intelligence on the group. The documents also revealed that the FBI informant attended several CSJ's planning meetings, including one that occurred on Feb. 9, 2015. There, the FBI informant "helped the group plan a 'die-in' protest and provided advice on logistics." The documents also revealed that the FBI informant attended at least six more planning meetings between Oct. 2, 2015 and Feb. 2, 2016. The FBI has long been accused of abusing its powers as an intelligence-gathering agency. In fact, FBI Director James Comey has publicly expressed a desire to prevent the bureau from being wrongly defined in the court of public opinion as a "policing institution." However, throughout its history, the FBI has operated as an intelligence-gathering agency, including providing what it describes as "intelligence-led investigations," on a variety of groups, including Occupy Wall Street, environmentalists, animal rights activists, anarchists, and others. As Breitbart News reported, the FBI used an informant to infiltrate the Black Lives Matter movement, as well. The Bureau's source of information was Christopher Slatten, who was arrested in Louisiana last month and accused of fatally shooting Anthony Lamar Smith during a BLM protest in Charlotte, North Carolina. Kelley Johnson, a lawyer for Smith'
