It is the single greatest event of our times. As the mass of humanity hits 6.8 billion on the planet it changes our world. Larger than the Industrial Revolution we are now more interconnected than ever and over the next 100 years we will be more connected than ever before. This growth has brought with it a series of problems and challenges. The internet has brought with it a vast sea of information and possible solutions, but has also led to the rise of the surveillance state. The rapid growth of our interconnected society is changing the way we work, socialise and even what and who we love. The only constant in this new world is change, and it is a world that we now need to have a say in. This is the Global Trigger. But how exactly is a Global Trigger going to affect the gaming industry? Well I've been thinking about it and I have come up with an idea. I am not talking to big business or anyone with a big idea about this, I have no financial interest
