It was designed by noted African American architect, James Johnson, and was built in 1913-1914 for the South Carolina legislature. It is a threestory, brick building in the vernacular style. It features a central, square brick block and three additions. The whole was enhanced with a distinctive cupola with a top that could be removed. It was added to the National Register of Historic Places in 1994. References Category: Rosenwald schools in South Carolina Category:School buildings on the National Register of
