The Metro Council passed the measure Thursday, but lawmakers failed to get enough votes to override City Council President Barbara Smith's veto. The repeal of the tax would take effect in March. The Metropolitan Government needs to repeal the homebuyer tax to cover costs it has incurred to build the city's soccer stadium. Because officials were only able to sell 36,000 permanent tickets and needed more, the city is making payments to the soccer league. Smith said the budget office has expressed concern that the city will not be able to pay off the debt and that the tax repeal would only increase the cost of existing bonds. "We have to continue making payments to the soccer league, but in addition to that we are building a stadium that the taxpayers have to pay for," she said. "And we are paying for it at a higher 6d1f23a050
