This is free VerbAce.-Pro is the program that was released by The Tech Computing Company in 1994. It was an interesting program because it was able to use The Google Translate server web page for translating any web page without having to install special software on your computer. The server was available for free. In those days of 1994, it was a revolutionary program because it easily translated the web pages that were visiting the browser window on your computer. So you could use it to watch news from different web pages and think of all the information from different website was automatically downloaded and translated for you by the program. This was free and it only translated the web pages. But somehow, the web page translation was not very good, in fact it didn't even work for some web page. But before 1994, there was no online website translator program which is quite similar to the Google Translate website. But only now, everyone has discovered the Google Translate website which you can use to translate web pages. But the problem is that it was not free to use. So when Google released the Google Translate website, The Tech Computing Company released the Verab Ace.-Pro. The Tech Computing Company released it in 1994. This program was the first online web page translator that was available free for everyone. The translator of that day is still the best among the developers, but it has to be expensive, because you have to subscribe to the Google Translate internet website. This program was available free and it was probably the best, because the translator was not as fast or accurate as the Google Translate website of today. At that time, the translator only translated the web page text that was in the web page. But for accurate results, you had to keep the web page loading for about 10 minutes for the translation to be updated. But now, everyone was using Google Translate and everyone was not able to pay for Google Translate internet site. So they had to find a solution. And The Tech Computing Company came with the solution, which was the VerbAce.-Pro. It was a program that translated the web pages text and not the web page by web page. It was not only free but it was also easy to use and it translated fast. When you were using this program, you would easily notice that it translated the web pages just like Google Translate did it. This was so easy that people were not even aware that this online translator was not Google Translate.
