Install Autodesk Inventor LT 2014 64-bit free. x-Force Keygen for ALL AutoCAD.The present invention relates to a power lawn mower, and more particularly to a cutting blade structure for a power lawn mower. Cutting blades used for a power lawn mower normally comprise a steel plate, a cutting edge of which is substantially curved with an arcuate shape. It is, therefore, undesirable from the aspect of fuel consumption efficiency, since the bent blades suffer a wasteful force due to the aerodynamic wind resistance during a cutting operation. In order to eliminate such a disadvantage, the applicant of this invention has proposed a cutting blade structure. The blade structure comprises a thin non-hardened blade member composed of an upper plate, a lower plate and cutting edges provided on both the upper and the lower surfaces. The upper plate and the lower plate are so arranged that the cutting edges are formed on the peripheral portion thereof. The upper and lower plates have respective arcuate shapes conformed to the contour of the blade profile. (see Japanese Patent Publication No. 6-50060). In the above conventional cutting blade structure, however, the peripheral portion of the lower plate is formed to have a great arcuate shape. Thus, while the cutting edge is formed at the central portion, a great portion of the cutting edge portion projects out of the outer peripheral portion of the blade. This causes the following disadvantage. More specifically, the projection of the blade edge portion out of the outer peripheral portion of the blade is so great as to protrude out beyond the end face of a wheel of the mower when the mower is in a cutting operation. Thus, the wheel must be provided with a space for clearance in the outer peripheral portion of the blade, thus necessitating a great space for the cutting blade. This is a great disadvantage, particularly when a mower having a small outer diameter is used. Furthermore, since the blade edge portion projects out of the outer peripheral portion of the blade, it is difficult for the blade edge portion to follow the contour of the ground or the ground-cover. Particularly, when the blade edge portion is used for a grass-cutting mower or for a grass-cutting lawn mower of the so-called sharetype, the cutting edge portion which does not contact the ground or the ground-cover becomes an idle portion, which
