1. Download Sgs Eclair Easy Rooting.zip

hi! I rooted my HTC my touch 4g by following every guide on this site. Then I wanted to download snappify on the market and it required root. I needed to download and install the snappify from superuser, I had no idea what it was for. I opened the program on the HTC my touch 4g and pressed the snappify button. It listed two packages: a deb package and a zip. I choose the zip to install and it prompted me to reboot. I followed the instructions on the screen to reboot, but when I pressed the power button to turn the HTC my touch 4g on again, it rebooted into the boot screen and stayed there, repeating the pattern. I tried to reboot again and this time I pressed the power button, it displayed the HTC my touch 4g and started the normal boot cycle. It made it to the HTC my touch 4g screen, then it started to display a message that said something about a complete reboot, but then it just went black. It stayed black for about 5 minutes and then it went back to the HTC my touch 4g screen. When I pressed the power button again it went to the boot screen again. It stayed there for about 5 minutes and then it went back to the HTC my touch 4g screen. I tried rebooting again and this time when it finished rebooting I checked my gmail, the apps on the HTC my touch 4g were still there and I had root access on my android. I tried to download snappify again and it prompted me to reboot, so I did. It worked perfectly and I was able to download it from the market! I hope this helps!

Hey, Try deleting the files and folders that are located in your app market on your phone. If that doesnt work, then go into the "Android" > "Settings" and then go to the "Applications" tab in "Settings". You can delete all the things in the tab that says "All" or "Installed" (depending on your OS). Then go into the "Android Market" tab in "Settings". You can re-download all of the apps that you deleted (this is the safest way to root your phone). If you still have the same problem, and you have your phone plugged into your computer, try to completely restart your phone from the last time you did it. On your phone's screen go to the "Home" icon and then press "Menu" to open the "Settings" Menu. Under the "Settings" tab, you will find the "System" tab. (Make sure that you are on the specific version of Android that you have installed on your phone). Make sure to restart your phone before rooting. 5ec8ef588b
