Saved games Saved game files are a way of saving your progress in a game. You can save the game when you are nearly done with it, or you can save it later on, so that you can pick up the game again at any point later. The number of saves you can do depends on how big the file is. A small file might only save your progress for a short time, but a larger file might save your progress for a much longer time. To save a game, you must first start it. To stop a game when you are playing it, press L2. The game should tell you when you are done with it, and you can press R2 to load the save. You can also save the game from the main menu, by pressing L3. When saving a game, it is important to choose the appropriate file for your needs. If you save your progress in a very small file, then you will have to save it again and again for a long time. Saving it in a bigger file means that you will have to save it less often. But you should always try to save it in the largest file possible. When you save a game, it is named something like "My Name - (Year) - (Day) - Save" For example, if you save your game on the 24th of June at 11:30am, it would be named "My Name - (Year) - (Day) - Save - (Hour) - (Minute) - (Second)". When you load the save, the save file will be named the same way, but it will start with "(Hour) - (Minute) - (Second)". There are many different types of saves. Some are in text files, and some are in files that are compressed to save space. The most popular type of saves are text files, which will normally save your progress when you save the game, and will normally save your progress when you load the game. There are many types of games that you can save your progress in, including Action/Adventure games, Role Playing Games (RPG), Simulation games, Shoot 'Em Up games and many more. Some games also allow you to save your progress in the Main Menu, and some games allow you to save your progress in the Options Menu. It all depends on the game.
